Or was Pete a heaven-sent angel in disguise? ber den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Patt Marr has a friend who says she reminds him of a car that's either zooming along in the fast lane or sitting on the shoulder, out of gas. Her family says he's dead right. At age twenty, she had a BS in business education, a handsome, good-hearted husband and a sweet baby girl. Since then, Patt, a professional musician, has earned an MA in counselling, worked a lifetime as a high school educator, cooked big meals for friends, attended a zillion basketball games where her husband coached and her son played, and enjoyed many years of church music, children's ministries, drama and television production. In her down time, Patt reads romance, eats too much chocolate, watches too many movies and sleeps way too little. She's been blessed with two darling granddaughters, wonderful friends, a great church and a chance to write love stories about people who love God as much as she does.
