Kurzbeschreibung Sarah Tawkes has found her dream house; a former roadside tavern built near the Brandywine River. The home includes a completely refurbished full-length bar in the Common Room. Even her neighbors children are excited about the prospect of there being 200 year-old ghosts, among them British soldiers and Indians, haunting the long ago Inn. After a costume party to celebrate her new home, Sarah, the director of a historical museum, awakes to discover herself transported back in time to the 18th Century without running water, heat or tooth brushes definitely all negative, But, a handsome, dark-eyed Indian balances the scale. She cant take her eyes off of Silver Wolf, and wonders what it would be like to live with a Lenape Indian family on his ancestral plantation? In the 18th Century this simply isnt done by any decent Quaker woman, even if a war is waging all around them. Yet, Sarah has lost her heart to this dark-eyed savage who has his own reasons for hating all whites. If she follows her desire what will happen to her prior life in the 21st Century? This fear haunts her every move and influences each decision she makes.
