stars* Delightful sequel Von Johanna Heat of the Moment was a truly delightful sequel. I can't even say exactly why I liked it so much better than the first book, maybe it was just the right time for this book and I was in the right frame of mind. I loved the male and female lead and I love their witty banter and the plotline. Well, now I really have to read the last book in this trilogy very soon. Becca is the second sister, the one that can talk to animals and heal wounds. But all her life, she has kept those things for herself. She even thought they were figments of her imagination. I mean, which adult lets everybody know about the voices inside their head... yeah, right. So, she had to tell herself that it all was just inside her head and not real. And of course, the most unbelievable part of the story, she never thought it awkward that her record as a veterinarian is absolutely spotless. Becca's greatest loss was Owen and his decision to join the Marines. I couldn't understand his self-doubts but Owen was still a wonderful character. I loved Reggie, his German military dog. The tension and sexual attraction between Becca and Owen was palpable. They have this deep bond already from the beginning on which was different to other romance plotlines. What I loved most was the dialogue. I remembered this specific language from the author's Domsday books. It is light and funny, sometimes very clever and fast. It was just so much fun to read. The general plot is driven forward with this book and I can't wait for the big conclusion and for all sister to finally be together. I would have loved more sister-sister quality time and a chance for them to get to know each other better. Smoke on the Water will be the last book in this trilogy and hopefully a worthy end to this fabulous series.

Kurzbeschreibung A spell that tore three sisters apart is broken four hundred years later, when the magic in their blood reunites them. Now, one of them will discover her gift-and reignite a love long thought lost... Flame-haired Becca Carstairs was born to be a veterinarian. Since childhood, her affinity for animals has been special, and her healing touch nothing short of magic. But only Becca knows the truth-that she alone can hear the creatures' voices. She's always trusted her sixth sense...until a string of missing pets, an attempted murder, and a face from her past converge into one explosive mystery, with her at its center. Is haunted Owen McAllister, the boy who broke her heart ten years ago, related to the sinister crimes that have peaceful Three Harbors, Wisconsin, on its guard? Or is his reappearance part of the answer to questions that have troubled her all her life? As Becca delves into her strange heritage, she'll have to fight for her life...and the man she will always love. In the second book of this spellbinding new series, New York Times bestselling author Lori Handeland delivers breath-taking danger, desire, and the dark heart of magic.
