Hmmm....read my review ;)Von SonneNo idea...seriously, sometimes in between I thought of DNF. Not because the book was written badly or the guys were annoying or anything. Just because it got boring, somehow repetitive without doing the same all the time and still it felt the same.Which is in my opinion a lost opportunity because H.D. is a character who could have made the whole book a lot more colorful and shiny. As is Bean a character, who could have given the whole book a lot more substance. I don't know what had happened, I can't put my finger on it. Maybe it was stuff like Bean noticing several times that he had started to giggle. But in the end - it had some parts I really enjoyed. So I'm going for an average rating.

Kurzbeschreibung There's been little love in H.D. "Hound Dog" Fisher's life since the death of his beloved mom when he was a boy. Bounced around the foster care system, he ran away as soon as he could and took the foster dog with him. As far as he's concerned, only dogs have no ulterior motive, never hold a grudge, and offer unconditional love. Now he helps run a no-kill shelter and leaves relationships where they belong: in the back room. "Bean" Alexander settled in Kansas City to open his coffee shop after years of traveling. He never expected to open his heart too. When a man with a grudge takes a swing at H.D. while in line at Bean's shop, Bean jumps to intervene. So taking a hit for H.D. gets Bean noticed, and H.D. feels obligated to pay a debt. But then the unexpected happens. A series of misadventures causes H.D. to open up but falling in love makes him turn tail and run. Trust is a tough road to travel. Will good friends, a dog named Sarah Jane, and a bit of folk magic be enough to bring Hound Dog and Bean a happy ending?
