KurzbeschreibungThe very pregnant woman standing before J.T. Ryker couldn't remember who she was or the name of her unborn baby's father. But Gina Banning was the one woman J.T. would always remember. The last time he'd seen her she'd told him she hated him and then married his partner a week later. So why had she driven through a snowstorm to J.T.'s doorstep? Gina sensed the honor-bound police chief who offered her shelter and protection was hiding something. His touch felt familiar. Was his kindness a precious gift or would she and her child have to pay a price once all truths were finally revealed?
