Horses and skulduggeryVon Helen HancoxThis is a contemporary romance set amongst a world of horses and stables in Virginia. The heroine, Elena Caulfield, helps to train some of the more problem horses at the Dalton Downs stables. She's a rather secretive woman who arrived with her pregnant mare Springer and keeps herself to herself. Unfortunately for Elena's plans to keep a low profile, one of the three men who run Dalton Downs, suave Rafe

Santiago, has noticed Elena and finds himself intrigued by her. In order to get to know her better he persuades her to give him riding lessons, but as soon as the lessons start he finds himself wondering about her secrets, investigating her previous role at a famous racehorse training stables, and uncovering secrets around the arson death of a famous racehorse. But someone seems to be interested in Elena and in her horse, Springer, and Elena has to decide whether to trust Rafe or whether to keep him at arms length. Rafe has to decide whether Elena is keeping secrets because she has something to do with the arson or whether she was just in the wrong place at the wrong time. The vast majority of this story takes place with scenes just between Elena and Rafe as they get to know each other, learn to trust each other and work together to sort out what's going on. The racehorse arson plot wasn't too complex and I saw several of the plot twists coming, but it was an enjoyable enough read. Rafe and Elena's interest in each other was somewhat out of character for both of them but it was explained convincingly and they made a good couple. This is light reading with an interesting background, that of the stables, and with a reasonable plot. Originally published for Curled Up With A Good Book Helen Hancox 2008

Kurzbeschreibung They're back--the boys you go out looking for precisely because your mother warned you not to--the bad boys every good girl needs at least once, if not twice. . . Raphael "Rafe" Santiago may have left the streets years ago, but the street has never left him. A rough childhood in the Bronx taught him never to let his guard down, to keep everything in order, and always to trust that little voice in his gut that tells him when someone's got something to hide. horse trainer Elena Caulfield, is definitely hiding something, and Rafe intends to find out what it is and take care of it--his way. But his way wasn't supposed to include feeling an intense attraction to the tomboyish Elena. With her mud-caked boots, quiet strength, and gentle manner, she's nothing like the flashy, seductive, overtly feminine women Rafe usually beds. The closer he gets to her, the harder it is to control that fiery passion he's worked hard to keep cooled, the kind that can catch a man off guard and leave him open to danger--because whatever secret Elena's protecting, it's big. . .and worth killing for. Because when you're from the Bronx, you take care of what you love--or die trying. . .
