Von Daniel Martin Eckhart : The Champ (English Edition) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Champ (English Edition):

KundenrezensionenHilfreichste Kundenrezensionen0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Moving, different and very very entertainingVon Katja RiegerFirst of all I simply love Wilber. In the beginning he just comes across as appealing and wonderfully likable. The more you read the more you realize how very special he is with a big soul to love and accept. And you get to know the other characters and they are quirky, tragic, special, funny and very human. I am not even finished, this is not a book to finish in one sitting as I often do. It made me think and it made me feel, so I had to put it away for a bit to give myself some breathing space. But I'll come back in a couple of days when I have finished it all. 1 von 1 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Great heartfelt story! Von bccore Written in an interesting style. Although the end seems inevitable, is filled with many heartwarming story lines which are nicely knitted together. Highly recommended!

Kurzbeschreibung This is the story of Wilber Patorkin. At the tender age of one hundred and fifteen he's the oldest man alive in the United States of America. His body is failing him gloriously, his legs will barely carry him, his quivering lips and dentures turn his words into meaningless babble... and yet he has the clearest brain and the brightest eyes you'll ever come across. His steps may be tiny, but his story is epic. His words may be few, but his mind goes beyond your wildest imagination. Join Wilber on a most unlikely journey and be prepared - you just may discover yourself along the way. Critical acclaim: "Eckhart has created a wonderfully warm and eccentric main character in 115 year old Wilber Patorkin." - "A story of friendship, mortality, and good vs. evil, it was so good I couldn't put it down." - "A crossover between Amlie Poulain and Benjamin Button" - "The style is a compelling mix between Stephen King JD Salinger." A commercial apprenticeship, a stint in the army, safeguarding the life of the Pope in the Vatican, then joining the United Nations in New York, then Jerusalem, Beirut, Tehran and Baghdad. I had my share of close calls with bullets, bombs and kidnappings. In 1990 I quit the UN to go to acting school in New York - great school (the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre). Alas, while there, I discovered screenwriting and, compared to writing, acting didn't stand a chance. Graduated from the Playhouse in 1992 and haven't stopped writing since. Enjoy your moments!
